Description

Four-light chandelier, the central body of which is an ovoid shape lacquered in Empire green, surmounted by a glass shade. Richly decorated with gilt bronze mascarons representing female figures. From the four branches supporting opaque and transparent glass shades extend curved uprights that join the main body with a gadrooned cup at the top. Decorated with acanthus leaves and stylized flowers. Very heavy chandelier, of very high quality bronze and glass. The bronze is in very good condition, with a small chip at the base of the central shade and a tiny hidden chip in the mount of one of the shades (invisible when in place). Height 100 cm, diameter 60 cm. Working wiring. Late 19th or early 20th century
