Description

Pair of Gilt Bronze Candlesticks - Louis XVI Period, circa 1785. A rare and elegant pair of finely chased and mercury-gilded bronze candlesticks from the Louis XVI period, circa 1785. They rest on a circular base adorned with a gadrooned frieze, surmounted by a tripod stem decorated with female heads in classical style, rendered in low relief and linked by foliate scrolls. The twisted central stem supports a candle holder decorated with straight fluting and a row of pearls, typical of the late 18th-century Neoclassical style. The pair perfectly embodies the antique taste prevalent during the reign of Louis XVI, marked by a return to Greco-Roman models. The fineness of the chasing, the balance of proportions, and the quality of the mercury gilding attest to Parisian craftsmanship of great
