Reclining Nude Figure Charcoal Drawing

Description

This framed charcoal drawing depicts a reclining nude figure rendered with confident, expressive line and tonal shading. Executed in charcoal on paper, the composition shows the model lying on a bed, her form defined through fluid contour work and areas of deep shadow contrasted against open passages of paper. The reverse bears a handwritten dedication dated 25th March 1993, indicating the work was gifted that year, while the style and academic handling suggest the drawing itself may date from circa 1950 to 1970. The loosely articulated background and assured anatomical modelling reflect traditional studio life drawing practice, giving the piece a strong mid-century figurative character and refined monochrome presence.
