Description

A sculptor of portraits and statues, and creator of medals and seals, Auguste De Wever (1836-1910) was active in Brussels, notably working for Charles Wiener. He is best known for his "Homage to the Promoters of Maritime Facilities" at the port of Brussels. He exhibited at the "La Guirlande" circle in Brussels in 1909. While biographical information about him is scarce, dozens of his small-format sculptures, intended for interior display and offered for sale, can be found online. The themes of these bronze statuettes are quite diverse. He also produced funerary sculptures.
