Description

Raymonde GEORGES(20th century)Still Life with SkullOil on canvasH. 80 cm; W. 60 cmSigned lower leftcirca 1950This female painter will unfortunately remain unknown for the time being, despite a talent that could not be limited to a single work, which is ours. This hyper-realistic canvas, created around 1950, inevitably brings to mind the compositions of Claude Lépape or Georges Rohner, circulating in the same smooth and polished sphere.The perfectly applied, vibrant orange background allows objects in unnatural poses, with perfectly cast shadows, to stand out. The branch of flowers hangs upside down, the skull (a horse's?) clings as if by magic against an object that one might recognize as half a fireplace mantel, though this is not certain. Everything is there to create an imbalance, without resorting to
