Description

Two natural sculptures composed of authentic briar formations, irregular woody growths spontaneously generated by the tree in response to stress, trauma, or external agents. This genus of Naturalia is particularly prized for its complex grain, uneven surfaces, and unpredictable organic forms. In this case, the morphologies are almost sculptural, with profiles reminiscent of mushroom or coral structures, making each piece a work entirely shaped by nature. The silhouettes are highly aesthetic, dynamic, and balanced. Sold separately or as a pair:- Price per piece: EUR110- Price per pair: EUR200 Condition: Perfect condition.
