Description

This antique solid oak hunting buffet is a true testament to 18th-century craftsmanship. Every detail of this piece tells a story, with an authenticity and robustness that transcend the centuries. The wood, patinated by time, displays a warm, deep hue, typical of well-preserved antique woods. The top of this buffet is adorned with a 3.5 cm thick marble slab, adding a touch of elegance and refinement. This marble, although showing a small chip on one corner, remains visually impeccable and in no way detracts from the overall aesthetic of the piece. It is "sound," meaning without cracks or major flaws, which is rare for a piece of this age. The original hardware is still present, a detail that will delight lovers of historical objects. This includes the interior closing hardware, the door hinges, and the period
