Description

A beautiful 19th century French hammered copper culinary mold of classic Kugelhopf form, featuring a deeply sculpted floral rosette design and a central chimney. Crafted in heavy-gauge copper, this piece displays a rich, warm patina developed over time, enhanced by visible hand-hammered marks that testify to its artisanal manufacture. The exterior is decorated with bold geometric banding encircling the body, creating a striking architectural profile when displayed. The high-relief petal motif gives the mold a sculptural quality, making it equally suitable as decorative wall art in a kitchen or dining space. A traditional hanging ring remains attached, allowing for easy display. The interior retains its original tin lining, now softly aged from use, confirming its authentic culinary purpose.
