Description

An interesting, perfectly preserved two-handled jar from the Florentine Montelupo factory, dating from 1540-60, a period in which this type of jar was produced. Its handles were shaped like dragons and the intricate decoration of blue vegetal clusters on a white background framed the typical cartouche with a mask, left blank here, thus perhaps never used. This would explain the exceptional state of preservation of this ancient artifact.The jar is 30 cm high.A certificate of guarantee attesting to the age and authenticity of the piece is included with the sale.
