Description

A charming presentation of uniform postcards by Maurice Toussaint, depicting various uniforms of the French Marines from the 18th and 19th centuries. They are presented in a modern gilt frame. Maurice Toussaint (1882-1974) was a French painter, draftsman, and illustrator, son of the engraver Henri Toussaint. He acquired a solid reputation for his mastery of military subjects, particularly the uniforms of the French armies of the Ancien Régime, the First Empire, and the Second Empire. His style is immediately recognizable: documentary precision, crisp colors, and elegant, rigorous silhouettes.
