Description

An elegant chaise longue designed by Tord Björklund for Ikea in the 1970s, emblematic of late 20th-century Scandinavian design. This piece captivates with its clean lines and remarkable comfort. The black lacquered tubular metal frame provides a graphic and minimalist base, perfectly balanced by the supple black leather seat and back. The ergonomic silhouette, with its carefully considered curves, naturally conforms to the body's position. The contrast between the rigid base and the supple leather gives the piece a presence that is both contemporary and timeless. The spirit of Nordic design is evident here: functionality, simplicity, and formal efficiency. This model is now sought after by enthusiasts of vintage Scandinavian furniture and collectors of designs produced by Ikea during its most creative
