Description

A series of prints depicting fifty allegorical figures divided into five groups: social categories, the Muses and Apollo, cosmic principles and virtues, the liberal arts, and the sciences and planets, known as "The Game of World Government in the Quattrocento." Reproduction from the 1980s with the permission of the BNF (National Library of France) - original edition after the copper engravings in the Florentine style, circa 1465 in Venice by Mantegna. Framed in solid, dark, patinated wood, with a cream-colored mat featuring 50 beveled windows. Each card measures approximately 18 x 10 cm. High-quality plexiglass, given the large dimensions of this work (151 x 126 cm).
