Description

Large covered bronze incense burner with a brown patina, resting on three feet. The body is decorated with different scenes on all six sides, featuring birds, flowers, and vegetation with alternating stylized elements. Good overall condition, with one scratch to the patina. 20th century, Far Eastern work. Dimensions: Height approximately 42 cm, Diameter 33 cm, Interior Diameter: 16.5 cm. Incense Burners in China: In China, fragrances occupy an essential place in daily and spiritual life. They accompany major life events as well as religious practices. In Taoist, Buddhist, and Confucian rites, resins and aromatic woods are burned to symbolically mark a sacred space or moment. The incense burner, therefore, does not only serve to diffuse a scent: it embodies the boundary between the ordinary
