Description

An elegant 18th-century Spanish still life, executed in oil on canvas and attributed to the Majorcan School. This refined composition exemplifies the restrained and luminous aesthetic characteristic of 18th-century Spanish still lifes. The arrangement reveals a subtle balance between naturalism and restraint, with a play of light and shadow that highlights volume and texture. The artist demonstrates great sensitivity in rendering surfaces, capturing with understated precision the tactile qualities of the fruit, vases, and surrounding elements. The work reflects the Mediterranean influence of the Majorcan School, where local tradition and Spanish Baroque sensibility combined to create compositions of quiet elegance and profound intimacy. Oil on canvas. Returned. Later framed. Canvas
