Description

Large and heavy Italian silver-gilt box. The box is rectangular, with canted corners, and entirely made of gilt silver. The base is highlighted by a wide molding that echoes the rim of the lid. The body is engraved with a frieze of foliate scrolls. The lid is engraved with scrolls and plant motifs left in reserve against a background of translucent red and white enamels. Through the translucent enamel, one can see the traces of the silversmith's hand-carved tool. This enhances the play of light and lends a handcrafted warmth to the box. The interior is also made of gilt silver. The box is hallmarked: 800 in an oval for the silver content. Italian silversmith's hallmark in a hexagon, used between 1944 and 1966, very difficult to read. A rectangular hallmark to be identified. Two weevil hallmarks, a later French
