Description

Contemporary sculpture in cut, assembled, and patinated aluminum, representing a stylized cow whose body is composed of the letters spelling the word "COW." True to Stéphane Cipre's style, the piece plays with typography and volume, transforming language into a sculptural structure. The animal's silhouette is constructed through a subtle balance between solid and openwork, geometric lines and softened curves. The deliberately nuanced surface treatment reveals effects of texture and light that enhance the overall graphic presence. The industrial aesthetic of the aluminum contrasts with the animal figure, creating a piece that is both playful and conceptual. Resting on a rectangular metal base, the work exhibits excellent stability and a strong decorative presence. Signed by the artist. Very
