

Monumental Bronze Sculpture Of Hercules, Early 20th Century, After The Farnese Model

52 450 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Bronze

Description

An impressive bronze sculpture of Hercules, created in the early 20th century after the famous Farnese Hercules, one of the most iconic representations of the hero of classical antiquity. The figure stands in the powerful contrapposto pose characteristic of the ancient prototype, leaning on his club draped in the skin of the Nemean lion, embodying heroic strength and endurance. This bronze exhibits exceptional casting quality, finely defined musculature, and a rich natural patina that accentuates its depth and sculptural presence. Its dimensions--an extraordinary height of 240 cm--give the work an imposing architectural presence, ideal for a large interior, garden, or institutional space. The quality of the workmanship testifies to the academic revival of classical sculpture in early 20th-century
