Description

Authentic entomological display case containing a large collection of scientifically classified Asian butterflies. The specimens, finely prepared and mounted with wings outstretched according to museum standards, are accompanied by original labels with Latin names, catalog numbering, and Japanese text, indicating the object's educational and scientific purpose. The arrangement by species and genus recalls the plates used in academic circles between the 1930s and 1970s, a period in which Japanese scientific institutes and suppliers developed naturalistic collections for the study of East Asian fauna. The wooden frame and original blue background lend the ensemble a strong aesthetic impact, making it ideal for both natural history collectors and as a decorative element with a vintage feel. m. 100X66
