Description

Oil on panel depicting the "Cabinet of Venus," likely of French origin. The painting displays characteristics typical of early Romantic painting, where neoclassical themes were developed with a more conceptual style typical of the Romantic and Orientalist periods of the early decades of the century. A painting worthy of study. A distinctive feature of the panel is the presence of a gold-highlighted sphere applied to the lower left of the painting, which appears to be contemporary with the painting. The panel measures 48cm x 36cm; the dimensions, including the non-contemporary carved and gilded frame, are 64cm x 52cm. We include a historical certificate of guarantee with the sale.
