Description

A bronze sculpture with a nuanced brown patina depicting Jason and the Golden Fleece, after a model by the French sculptor Émile Carlier (1849-1927). The heroic figure is shown nude, brandishing his sword and holding the conquered Fleece in a dynamic and academic pose typical of late 19th-century French sculpture. The work bears the signature E. Carlier as well as the circular foundry mark of Susse Frères Éditeurs - Paris, guaranteeing a high-quality early edition. It has a beautiful original patina with warm brown hues and golden highlights. The casting is meticulous, the chasing precise, and the sculpture has a striking decorative presence. A sought-after classic mythological subject in a substantial size. Dimensions: Height: 51 cm Width: 15 cm Original base. Very good overall condition.
