Description

Diana the Huntress, Painting by H.C. Danger France XIXth Century, signed Danger was a French artist known for history paintings, allegorical and mythological subjects, genre scenes, landscapes and designs for tapestries. He debuted at the Salon of 1898 with "The Great Artisans of Arbitration and Peace", boldly dedicated it to Alexander III of Russia. [b]A member of the Société des Artistes Français from 1899, he won a silver medal at the Exposition Universelle (1900), and was made a Chevalier of the Légion d'Honneur in 1903. His salon submissions included historical subjects such as "The Hague Conference" (1903), allegories such as "The Great Designers of Arbitration and Peace", mythological subjects such as "Venus with Two Gifts" (1937), more intimate genre
