Description

Painter: Bertrand Mogniat-Duclos (1903-1987), French painter, draftsman, and illustrator, primarily active in Paris. This painting depicts a forest path bathed in warm light, likely that of late afternoon or early autumn. On the right, the dirt path leading from the foreground to the background creates a beautiful sense of depth. The ochre, brown, and gold tones of the ground contrast harmoniously with the varied greens of the surrounding vegetation. On the left, a denser undergrowth appears in darker, almost bluish hues, suggesting the cool shade of the trees. The overall effect is peaceful and somewhat mysterious. The golden light on the ground perhaps suggests autumn or a late summer day. Technique: Oil on cardboard. Painter: Bertrand Mogniat-Duclos. Dimensions: 84 x 65 cm with
