Description

Rare carved solid wood wall display stand - A piece of folk art from the late 19th century (probably around 1870). The central panel features a lion in high relief protecting the smoker's paraphernalia: a packet of tobacco, cigars, and a box of matches marked "FEU" (Fire). The lower section has eight slots for pipes, decorated with a frieze of tobacco leaves and datura flowers. The piece boasts a magnificent original patina and exquisite craftsmanship. A rare, authentic, and characterful collector's item. Ready to hang thanks to its two original rings on top. It will make a striking impression in an office, country house, smoking room, man cave, etc. In very good condition.
