Description

1970s Lamp Attributed to Maison Charles - Glazed Ceramic and Metallic Shade - H. 72 cm. This important 1970s table lamp, attributed to Maison Charles, is emblematic of the glamorous French design of that decade. It rests on an elegant spherical base in glazed ceramic with a mirrored, mercury-like finish, mounted on a matching quadrangular base. The surface work, rich in nuances and depth, beautifully captures the light. The cylindrical shade in metallic composite has a glossy finish, creating a sophisticated contrast with the soft light diffused from within. It has a few minor chips and one arm is detached, but this flaw is well-positioned and therefore invisible. Total height with shade: 72 cm. There are a few minor dents from use, which are insignificant and do not detract from the overall aesthetic or the piece's sturdiness. A spectacular lamp, typical of the 1970s taste for reflective materials and precious effects. Ideal for a contemporary, neoclassical, or Hollywood Regency interior. A very attractive decorative effect. Given its characteristics (spherical base in reverse-painted ceramic with a mirror/mercury effect, quadrangular plinth, cylindrical metallic shade), this lamp clearly embodies the Maison Charles aesthetic of the 1970s, in the spirit of the models produced under the direction of Henri Samuel and distributed by Maison Charles. The attribution remains stylistic in the absence of a visible signature. The electrical wiring has been checked and is perfectly safe; it works very well. Please note that no bulb is supplied with the lamp. This item is not available for individual shipping, except in two packages and only via Mondial Relay. Shipping to these destinations: France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Spain, Italy, Luxembourg, Poland, Portugal. As an indication, two packages are required for mainland France. EUR50 (heavy item).
