Description

DescriptionJoan Escayola Blanch presents a delicate watercolour depicting a quiet rural road beside a gypsie camp, where small figures gather near covered wagons beneath a large leafless tree dominating the foreground. Soft washes of blue sky, warm earth tones, and muted greens create an atmospheric countryside setting while fluid brushwork conveys light and seasonal calm. The work reflects the plein-air landscape tradition associated with early twentieth-century Catalan rural painting.ArtistJoan Escayola Blanch (b. 1908) was a Catalan painter known for atmospheric rural landscapes rendered with fluid brushwork and natural light.Artist DetailsEscayola Blanch worked within the Mediterranean landscape tradition, frequently painting village paths, countryside architecture,
