Description

Bohemian yellow glass candy box with lake decor late 19th century Originating from the glassworks & craft factories of Germany at the end of the 19th century, this yellow bohemian glass candy is crossed by a scene engraved on a lake wheel - or hunting - where a dog admires the sky, surrounded by trees. Lively, this scene justifies in its time a desire to escape on the part of those who owned these colorful glassware. They allowed to contrast with the gray of the monotonous life of the cities under the industrialization of the 19th century, like a desire to escape into the countryside. This candy box retains its utilitarian side, to store candies, sugar or jewelry. But it remains highly decorative, perfect for collecting! Fast & neat shipping in France, Europe & worldwide.
