Description

Bohemian blue crystal pill box with decor from the 19th century Bade Castle. In the 19th century, popular art and German glass art were real small works of art. As beautiful as it is utilitarian, this box that serves as a pillbox is remarkable for its circular shape, with a body mixing symmetry and charming geometry, the lid, real icing on the cake of this object is crowned with a golden brass rim which allows the container to remain airtight. The top of the lid is the most interesting: it presents an acid-cleared decoration of the castle of Baden, a German fortress from the 11th century, in the state of ruin today. Both decorative, this little gem of German glass craftsmanship is perfect for collecting. Fast & neat shipping in France, Europe & worldwide.
