

Pair Of 18th-century Blown Glass Cruets

330 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Glass

Diameter : 6.5

Height : 19

Description

Pair of hand-blown glass oil cruets, featuring a globular body and a long, slightly flared neck. The side handles were added while hot and then shaped with pliers, illustrating artisanal craftsmanship. Each cruet has a fine, curved spout, both elegant and functional. The bases are round and retain a pontil mark (a mark left by the glassblower's rod during the blowing process), characteristic of hand-blown glass. Height: 17 cm (approximately 19 cm with the stopper) Base diameter: 6.5 cm
