Description

An imposing monastery-style refectory table in solid wood, resting on a trestle base connected by a wide stretcher, ensuring excellent stability. The thick tabletop displays a beautiful, warm patina acquired over time, with some signs of wear that attest to the piece's authenticity. This type of table, inspired by monastic furniture and large farmhouse tables, is distinguished by the simplicity of its lines and the robustness of its construction. Its generous proportions allow it to accommodate many guests, making this table an ideal piece for a large dining room, a country house, or a contemporary interior seeking furniture with character. Thanks to its timeless design and the nobility of solid wood, this table is a striking decorative piece, while remaining perfectly functional for everyday use. Period:
