Description

Important and elegant bronze sculpture of a naturalistic pheasant perched on a rocky mound, by the animal sculptor Paul Comoléra. The sculpture features a beautiful double patina, with the pheasant's finely gilded body contrasting with the dark brown patinated base, richly decorated with leaves and vegetation. The chasing is particularly detailed, especially in the plumage and the naturalistic elements of the base. The base bears the foundry marks of Unis and the inscription "Syndicat des Fabricants de Bronze - Unis France," attesting to its high-quality French production. A beautiful, large decorative sculpture, ideal for refined interior decoration, a library, an office, or a collection of animal bronzes.
