Description

Thanks Wikipedia! James Gillray, sometimes spelled Gilray, born August 13, 1756, and died June 1, 1815, was a British caricaturist and engraver famous for his satirical political and social drawings, produced as etchings and mostly published between 1792 and 1810. Two beautiful social caricatures by James Gillray, published by John Miller, London, and William Blackwood, Edinburgh, early 19th century, reproduced his entire body of work in a slightly smaller format, hand-colored engraving. A great commercial success at period, they could be bought separately or bound in nine volumes... In good condition, with light yellowing, these were never printed, so colors are quite vibrant and fresh. 32cm x 22.5cm.
