Description

The artist used gouache on cardboard to paint this scene of a bourgeois family from the early 20th century. A charming atmosphere pervades the painting, likely depicting a Normandy beach scene, within a gilded frame that perfectly complements the work. The entire piece is in superb condition. Henri Saint-Clair was a French painter with a passion for the Normandy region and French landscapes. His style combined Impressionist tradition with a modern perspective. His works illustrate family scenes and moments of simple happiness, inspired by the Belle Époque and its gentle way of life. His paintings have been exhibited in several European and North American galleries, which has broadened his reputation. Our photographs allow you to appreciate the quality of the artwork.
