Description

Here's a beautiful object, second of this model I found in 50 years... A stunning nutmeg grater made of tin, a two-handed model with a crank, a wooden handle, tin nailed and pewter soldered, late 19th century, its internal spring with a wooden push button, its crank with a wooden olive, in good working order, and we're still surrounded by that wonderful aroma... I saw (on Pinterest, thank you) that it's a model that James Hughes of Massachusetts registered in 1877. Bravo, it still works! Dimensions: approximately 16cm x 7cm. Condition: Good condition, beautiful, aged patina of the tinplate; Buy it now, payable by credit card or PayPal. - eclectic - We are not experts, but have been in the business for over 50 years.
