Description

An elegant pair of Louis XVI style bouillotte tables, resting on four tapered and fluted legs ending in brass sabots. The circular apron opens with a drawer in the front, concealing practical sliding leather-covered shelves, originally intended for games or serving. The tabletops are topped with veined brown marble surrounded by an openwork brass gallery, adding refinement and elegance to the whole. The woodwork, likely cherry, displays a beautiful, warm patina. This pair of tables would be equally at home as end tables, bedside tables, or side tables in a living room. A decorative and functional set, characteristic of early 20th-century French production. Condition: very good overall condition, beautiful patina.
