Description

An exceptional and large French Louis XV/Rococo style display cabinet, dating from the Napoleon III period, approximately the second half of the 19th century (circa 1850-1900). This refined piece is distinguished by its elegant curved lines and rich decoration of finely chased gilt bronze mounts, characteristic of the decorative taste of the Napoleon III period. The quality of execution and the harmony of proportions attest to high-quality cabinetmaking. The cabinet is adorned with a remarkable signed panel, hand-painted using the Vernis Martin technique, depicting a delicate decorative scene with cherubs. This type of decoration, highly prized in the 19th century, evokes the refined aesthetic of 18th-century France. The piece is presented in very fine condition. This display
