Description

Dating from the late 19th or early 20th century, here are two charming little rectangular baskets with hinged lids and handles, just like larger ones. These adorable baskets belong to the world of dolls, used as accessories for these toys. Very fragile and often mishandled by children, these two baskets are remarkable for having survived to the present day in such good condition. They can be sold individually if desired. Shipping within France and internationally; please contact me for details.
