Pair Of Advertising Toothpick Holders.

120 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Earthenware

Length : 8,2 cm.

Height : 6 cm.

Depth : 3,7 cm.

Description

Otard Cognac House. Earthenware. Depicts the Saint-Jacques Gate overlooking the Charente River in Cognac. Bears the inscription "Cognac Otard" on the front and back of the base. Features the coat of arms of Baron Otard with the inscription "1795 Château de Cognac 1795" on the upper base. 1950s-1960s. Height: 6 cm. Length: 8.2 cm. Depth: 3.7 cm. The Royal Château of Cognac, overlooking the Charente River, was initially a 10th-century fortress built to repel Norman invasions, then, in the 15th century, a lordly residence where one of the most illustrious kings of France, Francis I, was born. Baron Otard, who founded his Cognac House in 1795, quickly understood how the thickness of the walls offered exceptional and unique conditions for aging his eaux-de-vie. He then

Dealer

Propos d'Art
Antiquité - Décoration - Galerie d'Art
Mobile : 06 38 61 05 62

43 bis rue Rempart Villeneuve
Perpignan 66000

acquired the Château, thus saving it from total destruction. The Saint-Jacques Gate on the Charente River: the gate and towers of the Old Port of Cognac, also known as the Saint-Jacques Gate, are a monument located on the banks of the Charente River. The gate and towers were part of the city walls. The towers served as a prison after the French Revolution until 1860. The gate and towers of the Old Port of Cognac were listed as a historical monument in 1925.