Description

Metal crucifix chest pendant & polychrome mosaic Napoleon III period 19th century A true gem of Christian craftsmanship from the mid-19th century, this crucifix is composed of a body covered with polychrome micro mosaic with a floral pattern, surrounded by silver metal with strong and diverse symbols. Jesus is crucified there, his head straight, on a bed of mosaic with a floral pattern, this craft is known in Italy, where they master the art of mosaic like no other. Meticulous work, it is in good general condition, although a little mosaic is missing behind the back of Christ. Made to be worn at the level of the chest, hence its name of pectoral crucifix, it was popularized during the era of Napoleon III and was passed from family to wealthy Catholic family of the French Empire until today..
