Description

Seven antique English porcelain plates and a centerpiece, bearing the Wampoa mark and produced in Staffordshire in the late 19th century. Exquisitely elegant, they feature a refined blue chinoiserie pattern on a white background, evoking an oriental landscape with a pagoda, a bridge, and slender trees. The Wampoa mark is engraved in an ornamental cartouche under each plate. These plates lend themselves to a variety of decorative uses, both hung on the wall and displayed in a display case. The asking price for this set is EUR350. The plates have a diameter of 23.5 cm, and the centerpiece measures 37 x 35 cm.
