Description

Pair of table lamps produced by Mathias in France around 1970. Each lamp rests on a circular base supporting a polished gilt brass sphere. The upper section features an adjustable, dome-shaped deflector, also in gilt brass, allowing the light to be directed. The overall design presents a simple geometric construction, based on the contrast between the solid sphere and the lightness of the metal shade. The manufacturer's label is present under the base. Produced by Mathias, France, circa 1970.
