Description

Oil on panel. Attribution confirmed by the artist himself in 1970. This work displays an astonishing lyrical precocity: an Impressionist garden where light filters through the foliage with the intuition of one who already grasps the very soul of the atmosphere. Painted by Emmanuel Charles Bénézit at the tender age of thirteen, the scene overflows with a technical freshness that foreshadows the great master and systematizer of art he would become. This is not a mere school exercise, but a vibrant capture of nuances and reflections that the artist himself, in the fullness of his wisdom and memory, wished to save from oblivion by personally attesting to its attribution and dating it to 1970. By signing this canvas decades later, Bénézit not only authenticated a painting, but also sealed the sacred link between
