Description

A beautiful, large decorative piece, this generously proportioned cachepot from 1915, by the renowned Limoges firm Balleroy et Compagnie, is truly remarkable. Its vibrant and nuanced colors, adorned with abundant flowers and foliage, birds, and insects, create a beautiful botanical world. The confident brushwork, the composition, and the slightly textured surface all contribute to an exceptional piece, rich in ornamentation. A little history: Pierre Gâté, who had been operating a former cooperative porcelain factory on Rue François-Perrin in Limoges since 1855, built this new factory in 1860, where he established his business. He built decorating workshops there in 1881. The factory was subsequently run by Delhoume in 1890, Emile Massaloux in 1900, and then by the
