Description

Antique cabinet dating from the late 19th century / early 20th century, made entirely of solid wood and originally designed as a pantry or shop fitting. The piece is horizontally developed and divided into several vertical sections, each featuring glass-paneled doors in the upper part and enclosed storage compartments below. The structure is sturdy and functional, with a molded top cornice and imposing proportions. The wood shows an authentic original patina, with age-related wear consistent with its period and use, confirming its originality and character. The interior is painted in a matte green finish, typical of period pantry furniture. The cabinet has not undergone invasive restoration and remains in its original condition. Ideal as a cupboard, pantry cabinet, display unit or statement piece for rustic,
