Description

This elegant French two-seat sofa, crafted in the Louis XVI style, dates from the early 20th century and beautifully captures the refined neoclassical aesthetic that has remained timeless in French decorative arts. The carved wooden frame is finished in a soft cream paint with delicately gilded accents, highlighting the graceful lines and finely sculpted details. Fluted tapered legs, rosette carvings at the corners, and gently scrolling armrests emphasize the classical inspiration typical of Louis XVI design.The sofa features a high, shaped back and generous seat cushions, offering both visual elegance and remarkable comfort. It is upholstered in a refined striped fabric combining soft tones of grey, cream, and pale blue, decorated with subtle floral motifs that enhance the piece's sophisticated appearance. Decorative trim elegantly follows the contours of the frame, further accentuating the craftsmanship.The proportions make it ideal as a refined seating piece in a living room, bedroom, or sitting area. The upholstery remains in very good condition overall. On the right armrest corner, a small area has been discreetly stitched following a minor tear; the repair is carefully executed and remains barely noticeable.Combining comfort, elegance, and classical French charm, this sofa is both decorative and highly usable, making it a beautiful addition to an interior seeking timeless sophistication.
