Louis-Philippe period, circa 1830-1840.

Miniature presented in its carved and gilded wooden frame. This delicate portrait depicts an elegant lady from the first half of the 19th century. Her face is framed by carefully styled dark curls and surmounted by a wide-brimmed romantic hat, richly trimmed with lace and flowers. This type of hat, characteristic of women's fashion in the 1830s, was designed to frame the face and accentuate the refinement of her features. The artist pays particular attention to the rendering of the face: soft modeling of the complexion, slightly rosy cheeks, and an expressive gaze. The details of the hat, lace, and fabrics are rendered with great care, reflecting the 19th-century taste for intimate and elegant
