Description

Héran-Chaban, born in Armenia, is an artist often considered an "Impressionist," and his drawings and watercolors frequently appear on the French art market. His delicate work influenced many Impressionist and Modern artists. His works are now found in private and public collections worldwide. He repeatedly depicted views of the Seine, and in particular the Pont Marie in Paris, from different perspectives, as seen here in this watercolor, signed and dated 1933, lower right, where he has included the famous floating wash houses. Carefully framed.
