Description

Terpsichore (Muse of Dance) is an iconic work by Salvador Dalí, created within his series of prints "The Muses." This sculpture illustrates Dalí's surrealist vision of Greek mythology. He contrasts two figures of the muse Terpsichore: one with soft, sensual, and classical forms, representing the grace of dance; the other with angular, cubic, and rigid forms, symbolizing the rhythm and geometric structure of movement. Print on paper. Signed and numbered 132/145. Printed on Arches wove paper. Sheet dimensions: 50.5 x 66 cm. Marks and slight foxing around the edges of the print.
