Description

Elegant pair of nine-light chandeliers, with refined details and gilded bronze chains. The band features palmettes, a typical feature of the First Empire era, while the floral decorations, enriched with cornucopias and anthropomorphic figures, give a further touch of elegance. In the lower part, under the band, the chandeliers are adorned with almond-shaped crystals and a cup turned in Volterra alabaster. Additional lamps were inserted inside the cup at a later time, which increase the overall brightness. Below the lights, the hanging crystals offer a further touch of refinement. Finally, the upper part is decorated with bronze floral motifs and a pine cone, also present as the termination of the chandelier. This is an extremely elegant pair of chandeliers, capable of enriching any environment with taste
