Description

Authentic 17th-century Westerwald salt-glazed stoneware pitcher, decorated in the characteristic shades of cobalt blue and gray. This pitcher features a rich decoration of applied motifs and an expressive mask on the neck. Its original hinged pewter lid enhances its value. The ergonomic handle and typical Westerwald style are perfectly in keeping with the period. The pewter lid bears the maker's mark on the inside. Specifications: Origin: Westerwald, Germany Date: 17th century Material: Salt-glazed stoneware Color: Cobalt blue and gray Decoration: Mask ornament, numerous lion heads, one larger lion head, and four stylized notes on the belly. Condition: General good condition, with normal signs of wear for its age. Restorations beside the mask (see detailed photos).
