Description

A large antique Louis XV style giltwood mirror dating from the 19th century, with a spectacular size and remarkable decorative presence. This model, befitting a château or grand manor house, immediately captivates with its majestic height and richly carved decoration. The woodwork is finely crafted and adorned with rocaille decoration typical of the Louis XV style, featuring scrolls, acanthus leaves, and delicately worked floral motifs. The upper section is crowned with an elegant, undulating pediment, carved in relief with abundant decoration that emphasizes the elegance of the silhouette. The corners are richly decorated with carved volutes and bouquets, accentuating the decorative dimension and the quality of the craftsmanship. The gilding has a beautiful antique patina that testifies to the piece's authenticity and history.

The mirror retains its original beveled glass, the cut of which perfectly follows the curves and movement of the woodwork. This bevel creates a refined play of light and accentuates the visual depth of the mirror. Some decorative elements are crafted in gilded stucco, a traditional technique often used on mirrors of this period to enhance the carving and the fineness of the details. The overall design is very harmonious and particularly elegant, typical of the decorative taste of grand 19th-century homes. With its impressive dimensions, this mirror clearly evokes the reception rooms of castles or manor houses.

Today, it can become a centerpiece in a classic interior, a period home, or a more contemporary setting seeking a strong and authentic piece. Its considerable height allows it to be placed in an entryway, living room, library, or large bedroom. It immediately adds character and depth to the room in which it is placed. This mirror is designed to be placed against a wall, as was traditionally done for large decorative mirrors.

The back is entirely inlaid, attesting to the care taken in its manufacture and the solidity of its structure. We note the presence of a crack in the wood at the bottom rail, which is visible and should be taken into account, but does not affect the overall stability of the mirror. This element is a natural part of the character of an antique piece of this size and age. The structure remains solid, and the mirror retains all its decorative presence.

This large antique mirror is an exceptional decorative piece, rare in its size and its resemblance to a castle mirror. It will appeal to lovers of antiques, classic decor, and characterful antique furniture. An authentic and elegant piece that will bring prestige and charm to any interior. Dimensions: Height: 233 cm. Width: 123 cm.
